VOLUME XV

COLUMBIA, ADAIR COUNTY, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY AUG. 7, 1912.

NUMBER 40

Serious Difficulty.

Last Friday night Heaston Rucker, Penick Curry and Frank Karnes, all boys, about grown, met at church, in Cane Valley. Report say that Curry and Karnes had not been on good terms for some time with Rucker, and that there was some indications of a fight before services were dismissed. However, nothing of a serious nature occurred, and Rucker started home. Some distance from the church building all three of the boys met, a fight ensued, resulting in Rucker getting badly shot, and it is also said that brass knucks were used upon his head. He is now lying in a serious condition at his home.

Like all difficulties, there are two sides as to who is at fault, and the real facts will not come out until an examining trial has been held. Karnes, who it is said fired the shot, gave himself up Saturday and gave bond in the sum of $500. for his appearance at trial. Curry also surrendered, and is now in Jail. The examining trial will not be held until there is a change in the condition of Rucker.

Neither of the parties to this trouble belong to the citizenship of Cane Valley. Rucker lives in Green county, Karnes on Greensburg road near the Josh Hatcher place, and Curry about three miles from Cane Valley.

A Lawn Festival.

The members of the Presbyterian church will hold a lawn social in the spacious yard of Judge H. C. Baker, on Tuesday, Aug. 13, inst. From 7:30 to 10 o'clock. Should the evening prove too damp for the gathering—then Thursday, 15th, will be observed. All the members of the church, with their friends, including the Sunday school, are invited to be present. There will be a special program of talks, refreshments and a pleasant evening for all. The purpose is that all may become the better acquainted with each other and with the work of the church. No admission and nothing to sell.

A Close Forecaster.

Mr. Walker Bryant, our county court clerk, who is a close observer in political contests in this county did not miss the mark very much in the contest between Mr. Helm and Mr. Sullivan. He estimated that 923 votes would be cast in the primary and that Mr. Helm's majority would be between 500 and 600 which he wired to Mr. Helm. There were 941 votes cast Mr. Helm's majority is 573. So you see Mr. Bryant missed the mark but a few votes.

Card of Thanks.

I desire to return my heartfelt thanks to the many who so kindly and so willingly administered to my mother during her illness ending in death. In time of affliction, and trouble friendship was wonderfully manifested, and so long as I live I will ever keep in memory those who so tenderly waited upon my mother during the dark and sad hours of my life.

Gratefully,
Liza Shearer.

Mr. W. F. Sanders, of Joppa, was in town Monday and informed the News man that his wife is now rapidly recovering from a severe spell of typhoid fever. Mr. Sanders is one of our good citizens and farmers. He is deeply interested in the welfare of the Republican nominee, Pres. Taft, and hopes that the Stand patters will show their full strength in November.

Mr. Charles H. Bennett, who was a well-known citizen of this county, died in the Fairplay country last Friday. He was a soldier in the Federal army during the Civil war. About one year ago he met with a stroke of paralysis and was almost helpless from that date until his death. He leaves a wife and several children.

There will be preaching at the Christian church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, but there will be no evening services. The subject of the morning sermon will be "Reconciliation."

The Pike Meeting.

In response to the call for a meeting of Russell and Adair county citizens to consider the building of a substantial pike road from Jamestown to Columbia, Via Russell Springs, a number of gentlemen of this vicinity met, in the court house Monday with a splendid delegation from Russell county. Judge H. C. Baker was elected chairman and C. S. Harris Sec. Quite a number of speeches were made all endorsing the movement. After expressions of encouragement were given from the citizens of both counties. Judge H. C. Baker, Rollin Hurt and Lilburn Phelps were appointed to draft articles of incorporation.

W. S. Knight, Rollin Hurt and Robert Ingram a committee to select a soliciting committee and to report the same at a meeting to be held in Russell Springs next Thursday evening.

The meeting then adjourned all feeling hopeful of the enterprise.

Indian Killed on Track.

Near Rochelle, Ill., an Indian went to sleep on a railroad track and was killed by the fast express. He paid for his carelessness with his life. Often its that way when people neglect coughs and colds. Don't risk your life when prompt use of Dr. Kid's New Discovery will cure them and so prevent a dangerous throat or lung trouble. "It completely cured me, in a short time, of a terrible cough that followed a severe attack of Grip," writes J. R. Watts, Floydada, Texas, and I regained 15 pounds in weight that I had lost." Quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at Paul Drug Co.

Miss Frances Garnett entertained a number of her friends last Thursday night with a "Slumber Party." Those who received invitations were: Misses Mary Myers, Ruth Paul, Mary Breeding, Susan Miller, Regina Russell and Cary Rosenfield.

In the morning the boys were invited up. The dining room was darkened and candles shed forth their soft light and brought out with unusual effect the pretty decorations which were of nasturtiums. A delightful breakfast was served after which tennis and croquet were enjoyed upon the beautiful lawn. All left with the regret that it was ended and with the memory of the charming hostess Frances made. The boys present were: Edgar Reed, Paul Vardeman, Paul Hughes, George Hancock, Tom Patteson, Clyde Crenshaw and Ernest Harris.

Flying Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles just like other people, with like results in loss of appetite, backache, nervousness, headache, and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that as T. D. Peedles, Henry, Tenn., proved. "Six bottles of Electric Citters" he writes, "did more to give me new strength and good appetite than all other stomach remedies I used." So they help everybody. Its folly to suffer when this great remedy will help you from the first dose. Try it. Only 50 cents at Paul Drug Co.

A Ball Game.

Columbia and Campbellsville played an interesting game of base ball at the latter place, last Saturday. Only a few of the regular team here was able to take part. Mr. W. H. Wilson, who is the manager of the home team, states that our boys were most cordially treated, and that Mr. Kincart, the soft drink man of Campbellsville, brought up a wagon load of cold drinks for the players.

The game terminated 5 to 1 in favor of Campbellsville.

It is our understanding that Campbellsville will play a return game at an early date.

"Were all medicines as meritorious as Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the world would be much better off and the percentage of suffering greatly decreased." writes Lindsay Scott, of Temple, Ind. For sale by Paul Drug Co.

Editor News:—

As the work of the Chicago steam roller has evolved W. H. Taft as the regular nominee of Republican Machine, and the parting of the ways has placed the flag of revolt in the hands of Teddy, the terrible; we see Republican party confronted by same conditions as menaced the Democratic party in 1860.

In the Baltimore Convention we see a triumph of justice and eloquence over corrupt party policies of Taggart, Murphy, Sullivan, and others of similar kidney.

I can heartily recommend the position of the News in the final show down. It kept the colors of Underwood flying at mast-head, and then, after gracefully accepting the situation, accepted the verdict and promised allegiance.

This does not comport with conditions here. We had some local heelers who were for Underwood, and were very much "agin" "Old Bryan."

Ere the wires had cooled with tidings from Baltimore, they proclaimed themselves as original blown-in-the-glass Wilson men, and organized a Wilson club.

Cleveland county was at least two thirds for Wilson, but a man who had it recorded "against Wilson," was elected President of the club. He had the State chairmanship in his mind, but failed to land.

Why is it that a liar and scoundrel has such a pull in politics?

I can admire men like Col. Watterson, who while erratic, put up a fight and gave a reason for opinions. But the average politician seems to exemplify Artemus Ward's associate "Billson." When Ward rebuked this worthy for not having a well-balanced mind, "Billson" said he had a mind that balanced any way the public required.

I was for Wilson and got my man. My Next choice was Clark, my third was Underwood, and then I had none. Among Roosevelt, Harmon and Taft; I should prefer him of the big stick and the tomb-stone teeth.

I find that a knowledge of history, civil and economic questions does not generally qualify for political leadership, and certainly does not forapolitical success.

W. J. Bryan is an exception to the rule as far as leadership is concerned; but the rule holds good as to political success.

Before Baltimore Convention met, all the ignorant, would-be local leaders here were "agin" Bryan. I never have lost faith in him, and he had three supporters in my neighborhood. Now these very fellows are loud in their praise of Bryan, and these little, broad-brimmed weeklies call him the prophet and evangel of Democracy, and I am classed with the raw recruits. Perhaps some of you readers will think I am a disgusted office seeker. I ask for nothing and never fail to get it. Four years ago the Republicans asked me to run for County Superintendent, I refused to accept, but they put me on ticket against my protest. I wrote to Republican chairman, just before election to not run me. I never spent a cent, and never campaigned, but I received 1357 votes, about half of these being Democrats, and at least 300 Republicans out of a possible 900 scratched for me. The whole ring fought me because I helped break up the town ring. Since then my gang has made many of them bite the dust. I have been offered nomination for Legislature several times by Democrats, but would prefer a five-year sentence in the penitentiary at hard labor, and don't like to work either.

Getting on to farming, weather conditions, etc. We are having too much rain for cotton, and can't properly cultivate any crop. Peaches are rotting on the trees, and it actually rains too much to sow cow peas. Sometimes we can't plow a day in two weeks. This sandy land washes easily, and it looks bad for a farmer who farms on hill-sides. Such is my experience. At present we can't plow a furrow.

CHANGED THE PLAY.

Peter the Great Turned the Comedy Into a Tragedy.

It is related that Peter the Great, that mighty czar of Russia, strolling incognito through the camp, came upon a party of noncommissioned officers and grenadiers enacting a comedy, which he paused to witness.

All at once his brow became clouded. In the play a soldier in the uniform of his guard commits at a certain moment a robbery. Nevertheless the emperor allowed the play to proceed. The court martial is summoned on the stage and the thief is sentenced to death. The spectators, composed of officers and men, showed the most lively concern in the performance and laughed at the grotesque contortions of the condemned culprit. The amateur actor played his part very well. Here come the squad that is to execute him. "Fire!" orders the lieutenant, and the amateur dropped dead, his heart pierced by seven bullets—no make believe, but dead indeed.

It is I who ordered the loaded rifles given to the men. I henceforth forbid my soldiers to ply the trade of mummery."—Argonaut.

PHILADELPHIA SCRAPPLE.

How to Prepare This Inexpensive and Highly Nutritious Dish.

Have your butcher clean a pig's head and split it in halves. Put it into a stock pot and cover with boiling water. Cook until meat falls from the bones. Remove the meat, strain the liquor and set aside to cool. Remove most of the fat, all gristle and bones. Chop meat fine.

Remove fat from liquor, place on range, bring to boiling point, add meat and one pound of beef liver previously parboiled ten minutes and cut in very small pieces. Season with salt, pepper and sage to taste. Add one cupful of buckwheat mixed with one cupful of cornmeal, letting it slip through the fingers of the left hand while you stir briskly with the right. Thicken with cornmeal until mixture is the consistency of cornmeal mush. Stir until free from lumps. Remove to back of range and simmer two or three hours. Use a heavy vessel to cook the mixture in. This lessens the danger of scorching.

Pour mixture into brick shaped bread pans previously wet with cold water. When cold cut in half inch slices and saute in a well greased hot spider. Brown on both sides. Serve for breakfast or luncheon. This is an inexpensive dish and is highly nutritious and will keep several weeks in cold weather.—National Food Magazine.

High Living in Germany.

The Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin publishes an urgent appeal to German society leaders to return to "simple eating." It says that the luxury era in Germany has caused an extravagance in dining which threatens financial impoverishment and digestive ruin. Carlsbad, Marienbad, Kissingen and other spas which cater to the needs of "penitent gluttons" are, says the journal, visited by numbers, annually increasing, who go there in spring and summer to make amends for overeating and overdrinking in winter. "It would be a genuine public service on the part of leading society personages if they would begin by practical example to wage war on the sensual luxuriance of modern entertaining, as far as the culinary end of it is concerned. Only by a return to simple and sensible dinners can we avert genuine economic and physical perils."

Streets of New York.

"Anything in the line of luck can happen in New York city," observed a commercial traveler recently, "and some of the funniest stunts are accidentally pulled off. I saw something the other day quicker done than told. An actor was going down Broadway. A woman dropped a magazine or book from it. A man picked it up—a man worse for poverty. As the chauffeur turned the vehicle this man threw the magazine or book into it, and the woman tossed a coin at him. Another man, running down Broadway, caught the coin and continued running. The man who had lost his tip started to laugh, and soon Broadway was laughing with him, although not knowing what it was laughing at."—New York Tribune.

THE KOLA NUT IN AFRICA.

It Plays an Important Part in the Lives of the Natives.

In the parts of Africa where it grows the kola nut is much esteemed by the natives on account of its stimulating and other properties, and it occupies a large place in African legends, as well as in ceremonies and cults. These tribes have been aware of its power as a stimulant from time immemorial, and it is also used as a remedy for marsh fever and other maladies.

It is used as a pledge of friendship or affection, as an offering to fetiche men and also as money or for paying tribute. In the Bambara and other regions a young man sends a basket of white and red kola nuts to the father of a young woman whom he desires to marry. If the father consents he keeps all the nuts, but if not he keeps the white ones and returns the red.

The kola tree is much respected, and the belief is strong among the natives that if one of them plucks a flower it will bring him bad luck. Among the Bagwas a tree is planted at each birth or notable occasion. In the Dioruba region when a chief goes through the ceremony of naming his child he plants a kola tree, and this afterward belongs to the child.

In the whole of the Sudan region the kola nut is a symbol of friendship, and as it is an article of luxury the act of offering it as a gift is taken as a mark of the wealth of the giver. Eating the kola nut together is a sign of friendship, and it would be a great offense to refuse to do this. Treaties, vows or compacts are made binding in the same way.—Chicago News.

KEATS' LOVE AFFAIR.

It Was But Another Disaster of the Last Days of the Poet's Life.

Keats' way of love was by no means a way of happiness. The object of his passion was a Miss Fanny Brawne, whom he had the fortune or misfortune to meet at the Dilkes' house. She has become fairly well known in Keats' bibliography as "a brisk and blooming very young beauty of the far from uncommon English hawk blond type."

Her affection for Keats seems to have been real, but limited by a rather shallow emotional capacity. His for her was enfevered with doubts and questionings not only about the reality of his feeling toward her, but about his falling health and his uncertain prospects. Disease had already weakened him when he met her, and between the fire of disease and the fire of love his vitality was rapidly consumed. Love proved to be but another disaster to heighten the tragedy suffering of the last eighteen months of his life.

When, finally, he went to Rome, accompanied by the artist, Joseph Severn, he turned his back on love along with the rest of life. He died in February, 1821, and was buried in the Protestant cemetery, a place made so beautiful by the flowers that grow there the year through that it makes one "in love with death to think one should be buried in so sweet a place," as Shelley wrote not long before he, too, died.—New York Post.

Musical Conductors.

It is a significant fact that most of the great conductors have spent their apprentice years in mastering some solo instrument which they have used as a stepping stone to the broader and ultimate work of conducting an orchestra. Arthur Nikisch was at the beginning of his career a violinist in the royal orchestra at Vienna; Richard Strauss made his formal debut not only as leader of the Meininger orchestra, but as a pianist also, playing a concerto by Mozart. Felix Weingartner, Dr. Meck, Emil Paur, Rothwell and Oberholzer were first pianists of distinction before becoming conductors. This list could also be carried back to Hans von Bulow, the prince of pianists and conductors, and to Felix Mendelssohn, who inaugurated the famous Gewandhaus concerts.

Spoiled the Sport.

A gentleman from London was invited to go for "a day's snipe shooting" in the country. The invitation was accepted, and host and guest shouldered guns and sallied forth in quest of game.

After a time a solitary snipe rose and promptly fell to the visitor's first barrel.

The host's face fell also. "We may as well return," he remarked gloomily, "for that was the only snipe in the neighborhood."

The bird had afforded excellent sport to all his friends for six weeks.—London Answers.

KEEP CUTS CLEAN.

Then There Isn't Anything For Them to Do but Heal.

The cut made by the surgeon should always be kept absolutely free from germs. If infection occurs we know that some one has blundered. Accidental cuts, on the other hand, are almost invariably infected.

The germs of disease are everywhere. No matter how small the cut may be or how brief its exposure to the air, germs are almost certain to enter. If an accidental cut is to heal quickly and well all germs must be carefully removed at the first dressing.

When we consider how many are the ways in which a cut may become infected we can understand why such precautions are necessary. Infection is often introduced by the very implement that makes the wound. Only surgeons use sterilized instruments. A knife or a pair of scissors or a piece of glass or crockery is almost certain to plant germs in the furrow it plows. Germs may also enter from the clothing, from the hands of whoever rushes to help, from the first piece of cloth or bandage used to staunch the flow of blood or from the water used for the first washing.

Since the avenues of danger are so numerous, it is safest to assume that infection has occurred. It follows that every family should understand some of the simplest methods of sterilization. Heat is the simplest of all. The mother of a family should keep a supply of soft linen rags that have been thoroughly boiled. She should keep them not on an open shelf with towels or other cloths, but done up in a carefully closed oiled paper bag or protected from the air in some other equally effective way. For washing the wound she should use only water that has been boiled. When the doctor comes he will add some kind of chemical antiseptic, and it will be proved once more that a clean cut can do nothing but heal.—Youth's Companion.

CHANGEABLE CHICAGO.

Has Eight Counties and Many Varied Spellings to Its Credit.

"Few people know that Chicago has been in eight different counties of Illinois," said an old Chicago man. "It was first placed within the limits of Madison county, Illinois then being a territory, Sept. 14, 1832.

"Subsequently it was included in the following counties serially: Edwards in 1814; Crawford, 1816; Clark, after the territory was admitted as a state, 1818; Pike, 1821; Fulton, 1823; Peoria, 1825, under the jurisdiction of which it remained until the creation of the county of Cook, Jan. 15, 1831.

"The name of the city, too, has been spelled more than a dozen ways. Father Hennepin called it Chi-cau-gou; La Salle, Shecagou; on an old French map of 1682, Chikagou; on another old map (1673) in the Historical society library at Madison, Wis., it is Chikagau; Father Gravier (1690) wrote it Chikagana, and in 1790 St. Some wrote it variously Chikago, Chicago, Chikago and Chicago, he being the first to give the letters the arrangement which finally was settled upon as the authorized spelling. Charlevoix gave the same spelling in 1721. In the Greenville treaty (as revised) it is Chikagu.

"In an old deed filed away among the archives of the Chicago Historical society, as applied to the river or creek (1774), it is plainly written Chikagou. The word was the Indian word for garlic or wild onion and signified to the red men strong, mighty, powerful, courageous.

"In 1725 a chief bore the name Chicago (under some one of its many spellings), who went to Paris and was made much of by kings and princes."

"Watches" on Board Ship.

On board all ships a series of "watches" are established, so that work is shared equally among the sailors. To aid this object also the crews are divided into two divisions, starboard and port. A ship's day commences at noon, and there are seven watches. The watch which is on duty in the forenoon one day has the afternoon next day, and the men who have four hours' rest one night have eight hours the next. This is the reason for having "dog watches," which are made by dividing the hours between 4 p. m. and 8 p. m. into two watches.

Living on Rubber.

The rubber slug is one of the many pests of rubber plantations. It attacks the young trees and feeds on the juice oozing from the cuts. Doubt having been cast on the suggestion that any animal could subsist on rubber, a saucerful of juice was placed before some rubber slugs, which lapped it up like a cat lapping up milk. Scientists have come to the conclusion that this slug contains some rubber digesting ferment as a gastric juice.

COMPANY AT BREAKFAST.

A Surprise Party That Startled a Bride in India.

"I was married in India," says a writer in the Contra Costa Gazette, "and rented a little house fourteen miles' or so from any other habitation of white men. The morning my wife and I arrived the servants laid breakfast on the veranda overlooking the river. At the clatter of the plates there began to come down from the big tree that overshadowed the house and up the tree that grew in the ravine behind it, from the house roof itself, from everywhere, a multitude of solemn monkeys.

"They came up singly and in couples and in families and took their places without noise or fuss on the veranda and sat there like an audience waiting for an entertainment to begin. And when the breakfast was all laid and the monkeys were all seated I went in to call my wife.

"Breakfast is ready, and they are all waiting," I said.

"Who are waiting?" she asked in dismay. "I thought we were going to be alone, and I was just coming out in my dressing gown."

"Never mind," I said. "The people about here are not fashionably dressed. They wear pretty much the same things all the year round."

"And so my wife came out. Imagine her astonishment. In the middle of the veranda stood our breakfast table, and all the rest of the space, as well as the railings and the steps, was covered with an immense company of monkeys, as grave as possible and as motionless and silent as if they were stuffed. Only their eyes kept blinking and their little round ears kept twitching. My wife laughed heartily—at which the monkeys only looked all the graver—and sat down.

"Will they eat anything?" she asked.

"Try them," I said.

"So she picked up a biscuit and threw it among the company. Three hundred monkeys jumped into the air like one, and for an instant there was a riot that defied description. The next moment every monkey was sitting in its place as solemn as if it had never moved. Only their eyes winked and their ears twitched.

"My wife threw them another biscuit, and the riot broke out again. Then she threw them another and another and another. But at last we had given away all that we had to give and got up to go. The monkeys at once rose, and advancing gravely to the steps, walked down them in a solemn procession and dispersed for the day's occupations."

Swinburne would have suffered badly if the thirty shilling swearing tax had been enforced against him. He lived at the British hotel in Cockspur street and never went anywhere except in hansoms, which, whatever the distance, he invariably remunerated with a shilling. COLORS OF BUOYS.

Spell the Same Words of Warning In All Our Waters.

DAY GUIDES FOR MARINERS.

The Simple Code That Governs These Valuable Aids to Navigation—How the Whistling Buoy and Bell Buoy Fog Signals Are Operated.

As everybody knows, there are black buoys and red buoys, buoys with horizontal black and red stripes, buoys with black and white vertical stripes, not to speak of bell buoys and the much larger buoys that lie well out at sea and are called "mammoth buoys."

Each of these aids to navigation has, of course, its own particular meaning. The place that each occupies is carefully chosen for it, and its arrangement is governed by a careful system.

Buoys are called "day marks," in contradistinction to the "night marks"—the lights and beacons.

For the purposes of the lighthouse board the coasts of the United States, including the lakes and navigable rivers, are divided into various districts, each district being under the charge of an officer who sees that all buoys in his district are properly cared for.

For obvious reasons similar buoys in all districts mean the same thing. In other words, a buoy of a particular distinguishing color off the coast of Maine carries the same significance that a buoy of that same color has off the coast of Florida. So the mariner who enters the New England port is guided and directed in precisely the same way as the mariner who enters a southern port, and the same is true of all other parts of the country.

The government publishes constant charts showing the colors and positions of the buoys. The lighthouse board publishes, in addition, a yearly list, distributed gratis for the benefit of navigation, in which each one of the thousands of buoys is located and described.

The passenger standing at the rail of the liner coming in from sea will probably first notice a "mammoth buoy." These buoys are used only in special cases—as, for example, to mark the approaches to channels over bars or shoals that lie some distance from the coast.

Red and black buoys designate the channel. They lie on either side. The red buoys, which have even numbers, must be left on the starboard or right hand in passing in from sea. The black buoys, always with odd numbers, must be left on the port hand.

When there are two or more channels these are distinguished by a difference either in the size or in the shape of the buoys.

An isolated rock, wreck or any obstruction that has a channel on either side of it is shown by a buoy with red and black horizontal stripes.

Buoys showing white and black perpendicular stripes and lying in mid-channel indicate that they must be passed close to avoid danger.

As an indication that there is a turning point in the channel we see buoys surmounted by triangles, cages, etc.

There are buoys which are also for signals, such as the bell buoy and the whistling buoy. The latter is used off the coast to show dangerous outlying shoals or other obstructions. It is surmounted by a locomotive whistle made to sound by the rushing through it of air admitted and compressed by the rising and falling motion of the buoy itself. It has been found that these buoys are particularly adapted to turbulent waters, inasmuch as the more violent the sea is the louder the sound given out by the buoy. The whistling buoy, a most unpleasant neighbor, may be heard at a distance of about ten miles. Under very favorable conditions it has been heard fifteen miles.

The bell buoy consists of the bottom section of a buoy floating in the water in which is mounted a framework bearing a bell which, instead of the ordinary tongue and clapper, shows a small cannon ball supported on a platform just beneath the bell's mouth. This ball rolls to and fro with every motion of the sea.

Bell buoys are employed in harbors and rivers where the water is smooth rather than in the mudflats and where it is not necessary that their sound shall be heard a great distance. The ordinary buoy, not of the whistling or bell variety, is made either of wood or of iron. Those of iron are hollow with an airtight compartment and are of three shapes, called respectively nun, can and ice buoys. The nun buoy is almost conical in shape, the can buoy approaches the cylindrical form, and the ice buoy is very long and narrow, somewhat resembling the spar buoy in form.

The wooden or spar buoys are six feet in length from twelve to sixteen feet and painted according to the uses to which they are to be put. The wooden end is fitted for a mooring chain. Buoys have many vicissitudes and are exposed to many dangers. Passing steamers run down the iron buoys and up them open or cut off big pieces of spar buoys with their sharp propeller blades. As the iron buoys are made in compartments, they are seldom sunk by such collisions, but their flotation is often so lowered that they have to be replaced harp.

POWER OF THE OCTOPUS.

The Force Exerted by Its Formidable Sucker Lined Arms.

Both the octopus and the cuttlefish have arms that are clothed with a formidable array of suckers, which are wonderful pieces of mechanism. When the sucker comes into contact with an object the central piston, having previously been raised so as to completely fill the cavity of the sucker, is at once withdrawn and a perfect vacuum produced, explaining the great tenacity with which the suckers cling. They number upward of 100 pairs to each arm of the octopus, and once they obtain a grip on the victim, unless the arm is actually torn away from the body of the octopus, it is practically impossible for its prey to disentangle itself.

In addition to these suckers the octopus has a powerful pair of jaws, shaped like the beak of a parrot, behind which is a formidable armor plated tongue used as a rasping organ. The octopus will attack and kill crabs and lobsters of considerable size, ripping open the body by means of its powerful jaws and devouring the contents. In spite of being a creature of such awe inspiring looks the octopus has several enemies in various species of whales, sharks and conger eels. In fact, the latter are particularly fond of devouring the smaller octopuses.

Conger eels hunt for the octopus and when found proceed to browse on its limbs. The octopus tries to hug the slippery, slimy conger tight, but in vain, and, finding its limbs growing less, discharges its ink in the face of the foe and under cover of the turbid water beats a hasty retreat. It is to escape the too pressing attention of its foes that the octopus possesses the power of changing its color to correspond with that of its surroundings.

A BULL RING BEGGAR.

The Intruder Wanted Bread, but He Got "Thumbs Down."

Sometimes the bullfight in Spain is used to compel the attention of the authorities to grievances that would otherwise go unnoticed, as is seen in the following incident described by Harry A. Franck in "Four Months Afoot in Spain."

"The newcomer will long remember his first bull—certainly if, as in my own case, the first banderillero slips at the moment of thrusting his barbed darts and is booted like a soccer ball half around the ring by the snorting animal. Still less shall I forget the chill that shot through me when, with the fifth bull at the height of his fury, a gaunt and awkward boy of fit spring sprang suddenly over the barriers and shook his ragged blouse a dozen times in the animal's face. As many times he escaped a goring by the closest margin.

"The toreros did not for a moment lose their heads. Calmly and dexterously they maneuvered until one of them drew the bull off, when another caught the intruder by the arm and marched him across the ring to the shade of the mayor's box. There the youth, who had taken this means of gaining an audience, lifted up a mournful voice and asked for food asserting that he was starving—a statement that seemed by no means improbable. The response was thumbs down. But he gained his point, in a way, for he was given a fortnight in prison.

"Incidents of the sort had grown so frequent of late in Seville as to make necessary a new law, promulgated in large letters on that day's program. Printed words in all probability meant nothing to this neglected son of Seville."

The Uncertain Apple Tree.

An apple tree is the result of a graft from the tree that is known to be a producer of a certain kind and flavor of apples. If the seed were planted and one relied on it to produce a select grade of fruit the result would be disappointing, for the reason that from the seed the most remarkable varieties will be shown. Perhaps they will be miserable little crabapples or misshapen, bitter fruit or a useless conglomeration. The seed somehow or other harks back to its origin, notwithstanding years of cultivation. The varieties of apples known today are a result of careful selection and constant grafting of the better kind from year to year until the present development has been attained.—Harper's.

Handsome Goethe.

Goethe was pronounced "the handsomest man of Europe." He was a little over six feet in height, but so well proportioned that he did not seem tall. His features were of the Roman type, his hair rather light than dark, his whole appearance commanding. Even to extreme old age he retained a large share of the personal good looks that earlier in life had made him so attractive.

PERRY SCOTT'S TURKEY.

This Wonderful Bird Was Well Fitted With Legs and Wings.

The story of Perry Scott's turkey has come down from revolutionary days in Carolina. Colonel Gordon was accused to tell of the hasty march which he made before Rudolph's legion. He was just sitting down to dinner when orders were given to cross the Ashley river. It was nearly nightfall when he bivouacked in a valley in which the cavalry under Wayne had just encamped and, with his officers, began to sup on dry bread and potatoes. The infantry which he commanded were in a starving condition, and the commissary was without money, but raiding upon the farmers was sternly made punishable by death.

Reports of the hungry condition of the newcomers had circulated among Wayne's men. Just as the colonel began to eat his musty bread a private from Wayne's cavalry appeared and said respectfully: "Perry Scott had some money, colonel, and bought a turkey. We have unfortunately eaten all but one leg. I took the liberty of bringing that to you." The colonel took the leg gratefully and had scarcely finished it when another of Wayne's men appeared with the same story of Perry Scott's turkey and another leg.

The colonel congratulated himself on his luck and, handling the drumstick over to a fellow officer, went out of the tent. It was growing dark. Another cavalryman came up, whispered the story of Perry Scott and cautiously handed over a third leg. The colonel continued his walk through the camp and before his return had been secretly offered twenty legs and fourteen wings of Perry Scott's turkey.

Wayne's men had raided a poultry yard the previous night and concocted the story of Perry Scott's purchase to protect themselves in case any turkey bones should be discovered. The hunger bitten faces of their new comrades were more than they could bear, however, and each man, unknown to the others, carried his share into Gordon's camp at the risk of detection and death. It was not until the war was over and the troops disbanded that Colonel Gordon told the story of Perry Scott and his many legged fowl.—Argonaut.

STANDING UPRIGHT.

Easy Only Because of Our Complex Muscular Mechanism.

We are so accustomed to standing upright as a natural attitude that few of us think what a special complex mechanism is required for this purpose. A moment's consideration will show that the ordinary explanation of the erect position (the center of gravity to be directly above the feet) is insufficient. When a man is suddenly shot, whether from the front or behind he drops on his face, for the truth is that there is much more weight in the front of the spinal column than behind it.

The fact is that when we are standing a large number of powerful muscles (both front and back) are simultaneously at work, the effects of their action being to neutralize each other. Thus the legs would fall forward were it not that they are kept vertical on the feet by the strong tendon (the Achilles) at the back of the heel. At the same time the muscles of the thigh are tightened so as to prevent us taking a sitting position, and the muscles of the back are pulled taut so that the trunk does not stoop forward. The head is prevented from dropping by the chest by the ligaments in the back of the neck.

That the upright is not its normal position is easily shown by the fact that a man nods as he is falling asleep for as soon as the controlling nervous force is slackened the head drops forward by its own weight, only to be pulled back into position again with a jerk when the brain becomes suddenly aware of an unusual attitude.

Rivers and a Mountain Range.

The range of the Blue Ridge mountains in Pennsylvania is divided by a river every twenty-seven miles, as follows: From Susquehanna to the Swatara, twenty-seven miles; from the Swatara to the Schuylkill, twenty-seven miles; from the Schuylkill to the Lehigh, twenty-seven miles; from the Lehigh to the Delaware, twenty-seven miles. At the next twenty-seven miles is a hollow of New Jersey, in which nestles a lake known as Culvers pond.

Maybe It Was Accidental.

Pastor Goodsole had just preached a sermon on "Gossiping." It may have been, therefore, wholly unintentional that he gave out the first stanza of the closing hymn in this wise:

Blow ye the trumpet, blow
The gladly solemn sound!
Let all the neighbors know
That earth's remotest bound.

He looked preternaturally solemn, and there wasn't the slightest flicker of an eyelash.—Chicago Tribune.

A Sample.

"Why did you cover that board with paint and lean it against your gate post?"

"That," replied Mr. Growcher, "is a sample for the benefit of the people who won't believe paint is fresh until they have rubbed their fingers across it."—Washington Star.

True to Life.

"What success have you had with the portrait of your mother-in-law?" "Tremendous. It is such a speaking likeness that my brother, when he came to look at it, instinctively put his cigar behind his back."—Hillegende Blatter.

Patting yourself on the back is a difficult task—seldom done gracefully.

TALK IN CONGRESS.

Where Freedom of Speech Is a Right Jealously Guarded.

MIGHT OF THE LOWER HOUSE.

The Enormous Power It Wields by Reason of Its Grip Upon the Purse of the Nation—Absolute Democracy of the Committee of the Whole.

The house of representatives of the people of the United States, the great demos, the source of all power, the basis upon which the great superstructure of the government rests, dates back to the Magna Charta, and its immediate ancestor was the first parliament of Henry IV., in the fifteenth century. In Henry's parliament the representatives of the people established finally and forever that all revenue bills must originate in the lower house, which should hold the purse of the people and without which not a wheel in the legislative, the executive or the judicial branch of the government could turn.

It is because of this parliament that there is no ways and means committee in the senate and that when any treaty or commercial arrangement or anything involving the payment of money is introduced, any appointment or legislation is proposed, the house of representatives raises its mighty hand and settles the matter according to the will of the people through their representatives, for it can defeat any measure or any person by merely declining to appropriate the money necessary to pay for that measure or person.

When this great committee on ways and means presents its business to the house of representatives and the house goes into committee of the whole house on the state of the Union the assemblage at once resolves itself into a body as absolutely democratic as the Saxon Witenagemot or the New England town meeting. Every symbol of a popular assemblage is religiously observed. The speaker leaves the chair, and a chairman is elected who is not the speaker. Not even so much as the prestige of the regular presiding officer is allowed to hamper the freedom of debate. The speaker goes down to the floor and has no more privileges than the most obscure member of the house.

The mace, the emblem of authority, is put under the speaker's table to show that the house deliberates without interference from anybody. The mace is really a weapon, a stout wooden stick with a metal head, and used to be the favorite weapon of fighting priests of the middle ages. They were forbidden by ecclesiastical law to use swords, but got around the law by using the mace, a terrible weapon, against the armored men of the time.

In the choice of the mace is the type of authority the idea of democracy was rigidly carried out. In the early days only a few men out of the whole were authorized to wear swords, but any and all of the people could use a good stout stick, and so the weapon of their majesties the people was chosen. When the speaker presides and any members show signs of indulging in discussions and will not obey the speaker's gavel the sergeant-at-arms or his deputy is directed to "show the mace." That functionary seizes the mace and marches up to the offending members, who are supposed to be awed into good behavior at sight of this big stick.

Not long ago when two members got into a row and it seemed as if blows were about to be exchanged, the speaker promptly ordered the sergeant-at-arms to show them the mace. The sergeant took the mace, marched up to the two belligerents and stood, mace in hand, majestically, before them. This, however, had not the slightest effect, and the sergeant-at-arms anxiously inquired of a member sitting next, "What am I to do with the mace now?"

To which the member responded in a stage whisper, "Peek 'em on the head with it!" This suggestion brought down the house, and a roar of laughter and applause followed, in which even the belligerents were obliged to join.

In general, however, before the mace can be shown, the members rush in and separate men whose tempers have got the better of them, who have exchanged the lie or the blow that always follows. Members engaging in these rows are always called before the bar of the house and sternly reprimanded by the speaker, who talks like a Dutch uncle to them and calls them by name. This "naming" is the only time a member's name is used in debate. He is at other times "the member from So-and-so" or "the gentleman from So-and-so."

These collisions rarely, if ever, occur between members anywhere except on the floor of the house. Everything is permitted in the freedom of debate, nor is a member held accountable outside for anything he may say on the floor. Through this freedom of speech members say things they would not dare to utter elsewhere. In the old days duels followed the exchange of the lie, and the Graves-Ciley duel, the John Randolph and Henry Clay duel and many historical encounters took place. But in the evolution of government the principle became firmly fixed that there must be absolute freedom of debate and that no man could be held responsible outside for anything said on the floor of either house. As so the dueling practice was dropped, congress long before phillie sentinels abolished it elsewhere. No libel suits holds

of New Jersey.Vice President
THOMAS R. MARSHALL

of Lincoln County.

The contest between Hon. Harvey Helm and Judge J. A. Sullivan for the Democratic nomination is now a thing of the past. Mr. Helm carried every county in the district, and has to his credit the magnificent majority of over 7,000. There has not been a time when his supporters had a doubt as to his nomination, though few, if any of them, expected such a strong majority. His opponent, a man of ability, closely allied with the powers that be in Frankfort, a special friend of Gov. McCreary, made an aggressive fight and enthused many of his friends, but the willingness of Democrats to endorse and to retain our distinguished Congressman in our National Congress, was so overwhelming that the result was a landslide. We take it that the Democrats in every county, like in Adair, voted for Mr. Helm because they wanted him and not because of any dislike of Judge Sullivan, that they were satisfied with the work he has done and is helping to do, and not because they doubted the ability of his opponent. It is an enthusiastic endorsement, and was given deliberately and honestly without undue influence, prejudice or passion. In this county no money or other means of corruption were used. Both sides entered an agreement to this end and lived faithfully to the contract, and as a result, there is not a charge against the winner, and every man is now heartily a supporter of the nominee. Here's lifting our hat to our nominee our choice, and promising the best he could expect from this county in November. Throughout the entire State the primary measured up to the expectation of the people. Like the true Democrat that he is, Mr. Sullivan wired Mr. Helm his congratulations, telling him that himself and his friends would cheerfully support him at the November election.

At the Eighth district Progressive Convention, held at Danville last Thursday, every county in the Eighth was represented but two. Strong resolutions were adopted endorsing Col. Roosevelt and condemning Senator W. O. Bradley. Delegates were named to the Chicago convention, and W. S. Lawwill, of Boyle county was elected member of the State Central Committee. Mr. G. P. Smythe, of Columbia, was permanent Chairman of the convention, and the proceedings were very harmonious.

Eight members of the Adair county Republican Committee resigned last Monday. A progressive Committee was named and Mr. G. P. Smythe was elected Chairman. It is our understanding that a new Republican committee was named and Mr. Frank Sanders selected as Chairman.

Mr. Emmet Puyear, of Danville, son of Mr. R. E. Puyear, Campbellsville, was nominated for Commonwealth's Attorney by the Democrats of the Harrodsburg Judicial district last Saturday.

The National Progressive Party is now in convention at Chicago. Col. Roosevelt will probably be nominated tomorrow.

Tribute of Respect,

Tampico Lodge, No. 419, F. and A. M., Cane Valley, Ky., passed the following resolutions on the death of John W. Hancock:

Whereas, It has pleased the Grand Architect of the Universe in his infinite wisdom to again sound the alarm at the outer door of our Tabernacle, and call from labor here on earth to eternal refreshments in the celestial Lodge above, Brother John W. Hancock, on the 24th, 1912.

In the death of Brother Hancock, Tampico Lodge has lost one of its most highly honored members, who since his initiation into the fraternity stood in the front ranks of its teachings, and it is fitting upon this sad occasion that we should express our appreciation of his many good qualities, which made his presence among us a pleasure and a benefit. Thirty-two years ago he was born in the good county of Adair, where he inhaled the pure air of hospitality, together with the love of the beautiful, which he exemplified in his consideration for others and the surroundings of his home. About ten years ago he moved to Corbin, Ky., and accepted a position with the L. & N. Railroad Co. His faithfulness to duty, his sound judgment, and his work proved a success, and was promoted several times, his last position being Chief Train Dispatcher. We linger more fondly over those admirable traits of character that made Brother Hancock among us a comfort and leaves with us his memory as a valuable inheritance. Wise in counsel, devoted in friendship, with an almost unlimited confidence in those who won his esteem he reflected the light of his own character in the estimate of others. His Lodge, his church, and society has lost a valuable member, and many of us have lost a personal friend. We hereby extend to those near and dear to him our heartfelt sympathy. And as a mark of our esteem, and in fraternal remembrance of his many virtues, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Lodge, that a copy be sent to his bereaved mother and father under seal of this Lodge, that a copy be given the county paper and the

You carry Fire Insurance—and why? Because of the danger of sudden loss. Because it protects you against this uncertainty, although your buildings may never burn down.

Do you protect them against decay—against the weather—against the dead certainty of depreciation resulting from allowing them to go unpainted. Why not?

Paint Insurance is worth even more to you than Fire Insurance—yet is often sadly neglected—and you are the loser.

MASTIC PAINT for 40 years has proven the "real protector" of buildings. For quality—service—economy—and beauty of finish it has no equal. Ask for color card.

Dear Editor.

Inclosed find money order, $1.00, for my subscription for the Adair County News another year, and keep the good old News coming. I enjoy reading the news from my Adair and Russell county friends. It is awfully dry and hot out here. Cotton is suffering a great deal from the hot winds, but if it will rain in the next week there will be lots of cotton made. Myself and wife have just returned from California where we spent twenty-five days. Sure had a nice trip. We like to burned up crossing the Deserts of Arizona. The wind was just as hot as fire. It was fine going right off of the desert into the pretty Orange groves and Grape vineyards around Colton and Pomona California. Our first stop was Los Angeles, a fine town with a population of three hundred and eighty thousand. Los Angeles is twenty-five miles from the Pacific Ocean. When we would get tired in town we would take the street car and run down to Long Beach and take a plunge in the ocean and go back to town feeling fresh. It was a fine business, rolling in the hot sand then into the cool water.

Our next stop was San Francisco. We didn't like San Francisco as well as Los Angeles on account of it being so cool up there we liked to froze to death, from the ocean breeze not being used to it, nor much water of any kind in Texas, it went pretty hard with us. We went all over the Golden Gate park in San Francisco. It was about the swellest thing we saw on our trip. We also went through China town. It was a great sight. There are seventy-thousand Chinamen in San Francisco. Returning home we visited Pasadena, California. This is Millionaires town, here we saw the finest residence and yards of any place. The sunken Bush garden is also located at this town. It is eight hundred feet deep a person could spend a week around this garden and never get tired looking at the pretty flow-ers. I could write a dozen columns on California, but guess I have made my letter to long. Yours very truly, W. G. Leach.

Bowels are Basis of Child Health

The careful mother, who watches closely the physical peculiarities of her children, will soon discover that the most important thing in connection with a child's constant good health is to keep the bowels regularly open. Sluggish bowels will be followed by loss of appetite, restlessness during sleep, irritability and a dozen and one similar evidences of physical disorder.

At the first sign of such disorder give the child a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring and repeat the dose the following night if necessary—more than that will scarcely be needed. You will find that the child will recover its accustomed good spirits at once and will eat and sleep normally.

This remedy is a vast improvement over salts, cathartics, laxative waters and similar things, which are altogether too powerful for a child. The homes of Mrs. Carrie McDonald, 1035 Trigg Ave., Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Sallie E. Griffith, Veechdale, Ky., are always supplied with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and with them, as with thousands of others, there is no substitute for this grand laxative. It is really more than a laxative, for it contains superior tonic properties which help to tone and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels so that after a brief use of it all laxatives can be dispensed with and nature will do its own work.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, Inc., Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

The Sunday School Convention at Liberty was largely attended, a great crowd and a great dinner. So many got what they went for to see the crowd and to get their dinner. The speaking was good, Brothers W. S. Knight,
F. J. Barger, Charley Kennett,
Claud Harmon, Loren Phelps and
C. M. Dean were the speakers.
But the time has come that we can't hardly have a country Sunday school, there is so many games and basket dinners, they have nearly broke up all the Sunday schools and prayer meeting.
I am opposed to them. You ask a boy or girl when they come back from one of these big dinners. Did you have a good time?
they will tell you yes, then ask them who spoke and what was the subject, I don't know I was not in the house. Now these folks had a good time they got what they went for. Brother preachers and church members we must stop these big dinners or stop your Sunday schools and prayer meeting, which one will you help to stop.

Are You Nervous?

What makes you nervous? It is the weakness of your womanly constitution, which cannot stand the strain of the hard work you do. As a result, you break down, and ruin your entire nervous system. Don't keep this up! Take Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is made from purely vegetable ingredients. It acts gently on the womanly organs, and helps them to do their proper work. It relieves pain and restores health, in a natural manner, by going to the source of the trouble and building up the bodily strength.

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Grace Fortner, of Man, W. Va., took Cardui. This is what she says about it: "I was so weak and nervous, I could not bear to have anyone near me. I had fainting spells, and I lost flesh every day. The first dose of Cardui helped me. Now, I am entirely cured of the fainting spells, and I cannot say enough for Cardui, for I know it saved my life." It is the best tonic for women.

Do you suffer from any of the pains peculiar to women? Take Cardui. It will help you. Ask your druggist.

July 23, 1912.

Dear Sir:—

It has been my intentions for some time to write a letter to you and the subscribers of the good, newsy little paper that comes to my home weekly, thinking that it might be of some interest to you to read what I have to say, and possibly, of a little benefit.

I left old Adair County about twenty-four years ago and have been in the north-west part of Missouri most of the time since then. Yet, I have an interest in my old home state, and of course, contrast your country and happenings with that near me. It seems that along in the winter the citizens of your vicinity were divided on the question of compulsory education in the schools, just as we all are on most affairs of public interest. There would be no such division if we could see into the future or even know how certain things have effected other communities, hoping that the same may come to us as came to the other community. Of course, in thus hoping we must take the times and other changing things into consideration. This has been from my being interested in the letter written by Dr. U. L. Taylor in regard to compulsory school education.

We have a law in this state to enforce school education. As far as my observation extends, the law and its effects seem to be a complete success. I live in a town where there are no truants, whereas there were at one time, i. e. before the good law was passed. Before the law was passed a bunch of dirty faced, dirty clothed boys and girls might be seen at any time on the streets idling away the time. A sensible conversation was an impossibility with them. They were often causing trouble among themselves or with someone else. To my knowledge, there are some of them behind prison walls to-day, costing the state a certain amount for keeping up of criminals. Not one is in jail or prison that has been compelled to attend our system of schooling, but we have a long list of young people from our vicinity that are attending colleges and universities, where only a short time ago we had very, very few away at higher institutions of learning. I have yet to hear the first complaint in regard to the enforcement of the law and its effects on this state.

By education the state of Missouri has in the last few years made it possible that she might be fenced in and yet live off of her own resources. And, she is going to do more if she can better her school system fast enough. The agriculture department of the university is in itself a great blessing to our State. Do you remember Josephine, the champion milk and butter cow of the United States? Well, she is owned by the university and cared for by the students. That's not all our university champions either.

We are teaching our boys and men how to grow two blades of grass, two ears of corn, two bushels of wheat, etc., etc., where the figure one used to express the yield. Consequently, we have capital, time for rest and entertainment, and opportunity for the proper care of our Christian duties.

Without knowledge, we can make no advance. We have to educate all or we have a load to carry,—the uneducated. In shoving a boy into the water he may "take to the water like a duck," but when he has become a man you may have to carry him ashore. It is best that the man learn to swim when a boy. Why not start the children to school when young? It may keep them from being overwhelmed later. If we force them to school we afford them the opportunity of acquiring higher education, without which a man in this age of the world cannot even be a successful beggar. Give the child a start—maybe you will give him a chance to see the higher side of life. The lower side only, can be seen by the uneducated. Maturity is impossible without growth. A person will not grow physically without proper nourishment. We force him to eat when sick. Neither will he grow mentally or spiritually without proper nourishment,—education. The child is sick that does not want to go to school. He will perish if left unfed. It is said that public sentiment will do anything,—then, build up the sentiment that every one should have an education in order to meet boldly the times which are advanced.

It is plain that the west is outstripping you very much in education, and of necessity you are behind in general progress.

I sincerely hope that you of my native state will see your way clear for getting those youngsters, the future rulers and citizens of our country, into school and keeping them there till they stay of their own accord, which they will do when they see their elder brothers holding the places of distinction and choice thru the aid of learning.

I am still trying harder than I ever did to learn my lessons, as I thoroughly realize that I do not know much, even after forty years of hard study.

Yours truly,
W. A. Royse.

P. S. Enclosed find draft for four dollars and fifty cts. ($4.50) which is to satisfy my account and pay my subscription for a year in advance. Yours,
